

How Homophobia Hurts Children: Nurturing Diversity at Home, at School, and in the Community, 2002, Jean M. Baker, 9781560231646, Harrington Park Press, 2002, 224 pages

How homophobia hurts children: Nurturing diversity at home, at school, and in the community. "No outsiders": Moving beyond a discourse of tolerance to challenge heteronormativity in primary schools. British Educational Research Journal, 35(6), 837-855. doi: 10.1080/01411920802688705. CrossRefGoogle Scholar. Ehrensaft, D. (2012). How Homophobia Hurts Children Nurturing Diversity at Home, at School, and in the Community 1st Edition by Jean M Baker and Publisher Routledge. Save up to 80% by choosing the eTextbook option for ISBN: 9781317766391, 1317766393. The print version of this textbook is ISBN: 9781560231646, 1560231645. Back to Top. Get to Know Us. About VitalSource. Press & Media. Children and teens who reveal that they are gay or bisexual to non-supportive families are much more likely to become runaways and resort to prostitution for financial support. Research shows inconsistencies regarding disclosure. To test how a family will react, a gay or bisexual child or teen will often first tell a sibling whom they feel they can trust and whom they believe is most likely to be supportive, most often a sister. Mothers are more often disclosed to than fathers because fathers tend to have a more negative reaction. Baker, Jean M. How Homophobia Hurts Children: Nurturing Diversity at Home, at School, and in the Community. Binghamton, NY: Haworth Press. 2001.