'Troubled Waters' presents a comprehensive analysis of the political and economic dynamics of the Caspian basin. Following a historical overview of the region and its oil industries, the book analyzes the domestic politics and the foreign policies of the five states bordering the Caspian. It identifies all the external interests involved in the Caspian's political rivalries and control over its resources and territory, including the US, the European powers, various nationalist movements, Islamic militants, national corporations and international corporations.

'... a well written and highly readable book which provides a sound introduction to and a comprehensive overview of the complexity of contemporary Caspian geopolitics.' - Terry Adams, The Journal of Energy Literature

'... a welcome remedy to anyone who wishes to have a clear, structured and unromantic assessment of the 'new Great Game'!' - Scott Harris, Millennium: Journal of International Studies
