By taking direct responsibility for individual patient's medicine-related needs, pharmacists can make a unique contribution to the outcome of drug therapy and to their patients' quality of life. The new approach has been given the name pharmaceutical care. However, pharmacists already in practice were mainly educated on the basis of the old paradigm of pharmaceutical product focus. This requires that patients receive medications appropriate to their clinical needs, in doses that meet their own individual requirements for an adequate period of time, and at the lowest cost to them and their community.3.
