Series are more connected. Breaking Bad, Sopranos Weeds, Dexter and Big Love have have these running story lines that are kind of complex and ongoing . For example, in Breaking Bad there is mounting tension between Jessie and Walt that has to come to a conclusion and it does at the very end because it is the most intimate and intense relationship in the show. In TV a series is episodic. This means the show will come on every week but each show is a new story. I wonder whether both words are used or if only "series" is used for example in: Tv series I would like to be tonight's tv series about Albert Einstein...
